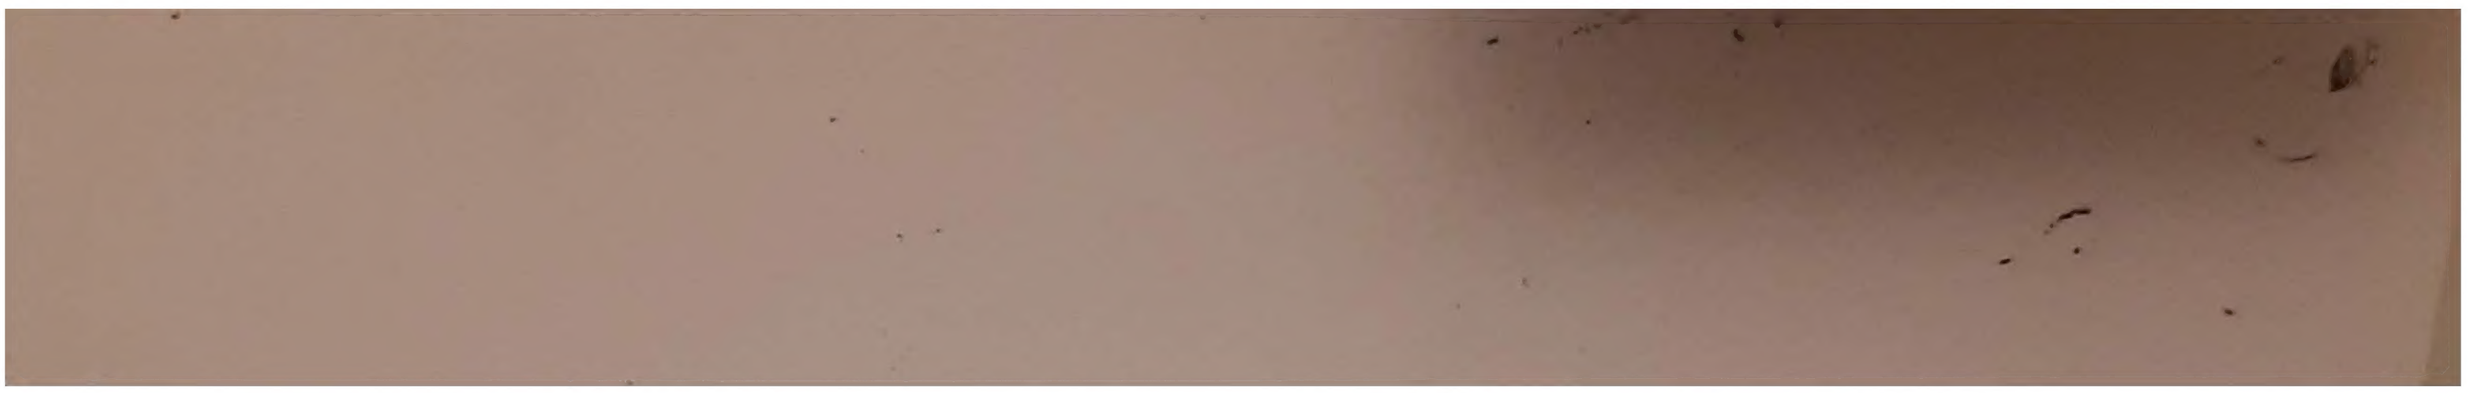
January 26, 2005
Dolls: Narrative

marketing display and availability. Rosalie Whylie Museum for additional research. Video(s) at the University of Washington. Internet for article research.


The thesis is on the impact of dolls and their impact on the psychological and sociological development of Black children. The argument will prove that dolls did have an impact , with the result being that Black children's self-image was damaged with low self-esteem and how the lack of self-esteem allowed the continuance of racism.